研究課題名: 韻律駆動型字幕の有効性評価 —— 字幕提示方法の違いが非母語話者の内容理解および話者意図の知覚に与える影響
本資料は、実験参加者に提示される全画面の質問項目を日英二言語で示したものである。実験はjsPsych 7.xで制御するWebアプリケーション上で実施する。

目次

1. 言語選択・参加者情報・インフォームドコンセント
2. デモグラフィック質問紙
3. 英語熟達度自己評価（CEFR）
4. 事前テスト：リスニング理解度（10問）
5. 練習試行クイズ
6. 本試行 — 理解度クイズ（6クリップ × 10問プール）
7. 本試行 — 話者意図推定課題（6クリップ × 3問）
8. 本試行 — 主観評価（4項目）＋ NASA-TLX（5項目）
9. 事後アンケート

1. 言語選択・参加者情報・インフォームドコンセント

画面	内容（日本語）	内容（English）
言語選択	言語を選択	Select Language
参加者番号	参加者番号（1〜52）を入力 / 参加者ID（学生番号）を入力	Enter participant number (1–52) / participant ID
同意確認	上記の説明事項を読み、内容を理解した上で、本研究に参加することに同意します。☐	I have read and understood the above information, and I voluntarily agree to participate in this study. ☐

2. デモグラフィック質問紙（基本情報）

項目	質問（JA）	質問（EN）	選択肢
年齢	年齢	Age	18〜24 / 25〜34 / 35〜44 / 45〜54 / 55以上
性別	性別	Gender	男性 / 女性 / その他 / 回答しない
母語	第一言語（母語）	First language	日本語 / 中国語 / 韓国語 / ベトナム語 / インドネシア語 / タイ語 / その他
字幕利用	映像視聴時に字幕をどの程度利用しますか？	How often do you use subtitles?	全く利用しない / ほとんど利用しない / 時々 / よく / 常に

3. 英語熟達度自己評価（CEFR）

項目	質問	選択肢
総合	英語の総合的な熟達度 / Overall English proficiency	A1（英検3級/TOEIC~300） / A2（準2級/300-400） / B1（2級/400-600/TOEFL42-71） / B2（準1級/600-800/TOEFL72-94） / C1（1級/800+/TOEFL95-120） / C2 / 母語話者

リスニング	英語リスニングの熟達度 / Listening comprehension	A1–A2 / B1 / B2 / C1 / C2 / 母語話者
テストスコア	英語テストスコア（任意） / Test score (optional)	[自由記述]

4. 事前テスト：リスニング理解度

音声クリップを聴取後、以下の10問に回答（4択）。問題はpretest_questions.enc.jsonから復号して表示。
※ 正答情報はXOR + Caesar + Base64の三層暗号化。この資料では暗号化前の原文を掲載。

5. 練習試行クイズ（Practice）

練習映像: Simon Sinek "How Great Leaders Inspire Action" (2009)（Normal条件の字幕）視聴後に出題

Practice — Simon Sinek: "How Great Leaders Inspire Action" (200語)

How do you explain when things don't go as we assume? Or better, how do you explain when others are able to achieve things that seem to defy all of the assumptions? For example, why is Apple so innovative? Year after year after year after year, they're more innovative than all their competition. And yet, they're just a computer company. They're just like everyone else. They have the same access to the same talent, the same agencies, the same consultants, the same media. Then why is it that they seem to have something different? Why is it that Martin Luther King led the civil rights movement? He wasn't the only man who suffered in a pre-civil rights America, and he certainly wasn't the only great orator of the day. Why him? And why is it that the Wright brothers were able to figure out controlled, powered man flight when there were certainly other teams who were better qualified, better funded, and they didn't achieve powered man flight, and the Wright brothers beat them to it? There's something else at play here. About three and a half years ago, I made a discovery, and this discovery profoundly changed my view.

Clip H1 — Ken Robinson: "Do Schools Kill Creativity?" (210語)

treated with the same status. Thank you. That was it. Thank you very much. So 15 minutes left. Well, I was born. No, the I had a great story recently. I love telling it of a little girl who was in a drawing lesson. She was six and she was at the back drawing and the teacher said this little girl hardly ever paid attention. And in this drawing lesson, she did. And the teacher was fascinated. She went over to him and she said, what are you drawing? And the girl said, I'm drawing a picture of God. And the teacher said, but nobody knows what God looks like. And the girl said, they will in a minute. When my son was four in England, actually, he was four everywhere, to be honest. I mean, we're being strict about it wherever he went. He was four that year, but he was in the Nativity play. Do you remember the story? No, it's big. It's a big story. Mel Gibson did the sequel. You may have seen it. Nativity 2. But James got the part of Joseph, which we were thrilled about. We consider this to be one of the lead parts. We had the place crammed full of agents

Clip H2 — Brené Brown: "The Power of Vulnerability" (256語)

These are kind of wholehearted people living from this deep sense of worthiness. So I wrote at the top of the Manila folder, and I started looking at the data. In fact, I did it first in a four-day, very intensive data analysis where I went back, pulled these interviews, pulled the stories, pulled the incidents. What's the theme? What's the pattern? My husband left town with the kids because I always go into this kind of Jackson Pollock crazy thing where I'm just like writing and going in kind of just in my researcher mode. And so here's what I found. What they had in common was a sense of courage. And I want to separate courage and bravery for you for a minute. Courage, the original definition of courage when it first came into the English language, it's from the Latin word cur, meaning heart, and the original definition was to tell the story of who you are with your whole heart. And so these folks had very simply the courage to be imperfect. They had the compassion to be kind to themselves first and then to others because as it turns out we can't practice compassion with other people if we can't treat ourselves kindly. And the last was they had connection, and this was the hard part, as a result of authenticity. They were willing to let go of who they thought they should be in order to be who they were, which is you have to absolutely do that for connection.

Clip H3 — Kelly McGonigal: "How to Make Stress Your Friend" (208語)

Um, me too. But that is not my confession. My confession is this. I am a health psychologist, and my mission is to help people be happier and healthier. But I fear that something I've been teaching for the last 10 years is doing more harm than good, and it has to do with stress. For years, I've been telling people stress makes you sick. It increases the risk of everything, from the common cold to cardiovascular disease. Basically, I've turned stress into the enemy. But I've changed my mind about stress, and today, I want to change yours. Let me start with the study that made me rethink my whole approach to stress. This study tracked 30,000 adults in the United States for eight years, and they started by asking people, how much stress have you experienced in the last year? They also asked, do you believe that stress is harmful for your health? And then they used public death records to find out who died. Okay. Some bad news first. People who experienced a lot of stress in the previous year had a 43% increased risk of dying. But that was only true for the people who also believed that stress is harmful for your health.

Clip L1 — Hans Rosling: "The Best Stats You've Ever Seen" (269語)

Latin American countries, they are moving towards smaller families. The yellow ones here are the Arabic countries, and they get larger families. But they, no, longer life, but not larger families. The Africans are the green down here, they still remain here. This is India, Indonesia is moving on pretty fast. And in the 80s here, you have Bangladesh still among the African countries there. But now Bangladesh, it's a miracle that happens in the 80s. The imams start to promote family planning, and they move up into that corner. And in 90s, we have the terrible HIV epidemic that takes down the life expectancy of the African countries. And all the rest of the world moves up into the corner where we have long lives and small family. And we have a completely new world. Let me make a comparison directly between United States of America and Vietnam, 1964. America had small families and long life. Vietnam had large families and short lives. And this is what happens. The data during the war indicate that the African countries are moving towards larger families. And the African countries are moving towards smaller families. And this is what happens. The data during the war indicate that even with all the death, there was an improvement of life expectancy. By the end of the year, the family planning started in Vietnam and they went for smaller families. And the United States up there is getting for longer life, keeping family size. And in the 80s now, they give up communist planning and they go for market economy and it moves fast.

Clip L2 — David Christian: "The History of Our World in 18 Minutes" (196語) ruled by the second law of thermodynamics, how is it possible to generate the sort of complexity I've described, the sort of complexity represented by you and me and the convention center? Well, the answer seems to be the universe can create complexity, but with great difficulty. In pockets, there appear what my colleague Fred Spear calls goldilocks conditions, not too hot, not too cold, just right for the creation of complexity. And slightly more complex things appear. And where you have slightly more complex things, you can get slightly more complex things. And in this way, complexity builds stage by stage. Each stage is magical because it creates the impression of something utterly new, appearing almost out of nowhere in the universe. We refer in big history to these moments as threshold moments. And at each threshold, the going gets tougher. The complex things get more fragile, more vulnerable. The goldilocks conditions get more stringent. And it's more difficult to create complexity. Now, we as extremely complex creatures desperately need to know this story of how the universe creates complexity despite the second law, and why complexity means vulnerability and fragility. And that's the story.

Clip L3 — Al Gore: "Averting the Climate Crisis" (193語)

a big white chef's hat. Tipper was saying, one more burger with fries. Three days later, I got a nice, long, handwritten letter from my friend and partner and colleague Bill Clinton saying, congratulations on the new restaurant out. We like to celebrate each other's successes in life. I was going to talk about information ecology, but I was thinking that since I planned to make a lifelong habit of coming back to TED, that maybe I could talk about that another time. It's a deal. I want to focus on what many of you have said you would like me to elaborate on. What can you do about the climate crisis? I want to start with a couple of... I'm going to show some new images and I'm going to recapitulate just four or five. Now, oh, the slideshow. I update the slideshow. Every time I give it, I add new images because I learn more about it every time I give it. It's like beach combing, you know? Every time the tide comes in and out, you find some more shells. Just in the last two days, we got the new...
